Strong-Arm Method to Smash Arab Revolt in Palestine Is Backed

ABANDON PARTITION

To Discuss Plan for Unified Jewish-Arab State Under British Guidance

By International News Service
LONDON, Oct. 19.—Strong arm methods by the 25,000 British troops and police in Palestine to smash the Arab revolt were approved today by the cabinet.

While determined to push Arab rebels out of the Holy Land, the government in a thorough investigation of the Holy Palestine situation, virtually abandoned the partition scheme.

Instead, it was decided to discuss at its meeting a week hence, a plan for a unified Jewish-Arab state under British guidance.

During the battle against the Arabs, the British will likely restrict Jewish immigration into Palestine temporarily to a figure even lower than the present 1000 monthly.

The cabinet, it was learned, also took cognizance of increasing reports of German penetration and influence among Palestinian and Syrian Arabs.

WASPS KEEP STEEPLE-JACKS ON THE JUMP

Trio Repairing Tip of Church Tower Find Work There Very Uncomfortable

USE GASOLINE SPRAY

SELLERSVILLE, Oct. 19.—The story of the one-armed paper hanger with hives is familiar, but this town had a steeplejack with wasps.

In fact, there are three of them (steeplejacks) on the top of St. Michael's Lutheran Church, here, trying to battle a big nest of wasps and at the same time repair the tip of the church tower.

When the Kozero brothers, Michael and George, Northampton, gave their estimate of how long it would take them to complete the job at the church they figured on five days or less. But they were not counting on the wasps. Now it will take them at least two weeks because they have been delayed by about 200 hardboiled insects who refuse to vacate.

The Zozero brothers, ably assisted by John Yanders, also a resident of Northampton, first tried ordinary insect exterminator on the wasps, but they proved too tough to mind that, so "Mike" hit upon the plan of sending a spray of gasoline through his "insect gun." This kept the wasps at bay, but sometimes makes them madder than a hornet. And all this is not conducive to peaceful painting 108 feet above ground, according to the Kozero brothers.

This is the 117th steeple for the two brothers, who have been fixing tall smokestacks, churches and factories for ten years, but in all their travels they have had no such an experience as this. A second matter that makes "Mike" feel his oats when he mounts a trapeze more than 100 feet from terra firm is the fact that termites have found a home in the upper part of the steeple just below the large brass ball which housed the wasps. He said that through personal experience he found the only thing that ever stung him worse than a wasp was a termite.

The Kozeros brothers finally removed the big, hollow copper ball, which measures five feet in circumference, with considerable protest from the wasps. They sent the ball away for repairs and a new coat of gold leaf.

It has been 21 years since the spire on this church received so much exterior attention. School children in the grounds across the street now spend recess time watching the "human flies," while thousands of motorists on the Philadelphia-Allentown pike watch the work of the steeplejacks at work as they pass the church.

Dr. Paul Todd, of Canton, China, has been visiting his brother-in-law, Dr. A. J. Strathie, and family, in Newtown. Dr. Todd is head of the Todd Clinic and Hospital in Canton, and formerly lived in Kansas.

He talked to the eighth grade in the Newtown School last week and told many interesting things about China and his experiences there.

Dr. Todd came to America by way of London, and will return to Canton after visiting numerous relatives and friends in the United States, by way of California.

Two new members were elected and plans discussed for a dinner at the monthly meeting of the Morrisville Chamber of Commerce in the Community House. The dinner will be held Tuesday night, November 15, when there will be a discussion of what can be done to stimulate interest in the organization. A committee to complete arrangements will be named by President George Burger.

The Perkase Branch, Needlework Guild of America, displayed 7040 garments at its 24th annual ingathering which was held in the Perkase fire hall, Saturday afternoon.

According to Mrs. H. N. Apple, president, the number of garments collected this year is an increase of 344 over last year's total. A sum of $160.30 was contributed by the money-members of the guild.

Rev. N. Y. Ritter, pastor of the Trinity Lutheran Church, Perkase, was in charge of prayers at the meeting. A duet was sung by Mrs. Walter Snyder and Mrs. Claude Fluck, who were accompanied by Mrs. Paul Fretz. Mrs. Helen Kline, of Philadelphia, spoke on the "Family Society of Philadelphia," and Mrs. Oliver Keely, of Wyncote, gave a speech on "Guild Extension Work."

A letter from Borough Council was read, in which that body replied to the association's suggestion that signs be erected at each end of the town on the Lincoln Highway, "There are lights ahead." It was Council's thought that motorists are usually careful when approaching small

AGRICULTURAL STUDENTS INCREASE IN NUMBERS

Enrollment Higher in Bucks County High Schools; Remarkable Growth

A PRACTICAL COURSE

The enrollment of pupils in the agricultural courses in the high schools of Bucks County has made a remarkable growth according to Samuel L. Horst, County Supervisor of Agriculture courses in the schools in Bucks and Montgomery counties.

At present there are 67 boys enrolled in the full time Agricultural Courses offered in the high schools of Quakertown and Pleasant Valley. These pupils represent ten school districts in Bucks County and one district in Northampton County. The pupils in these courses devote practically one-half of the school day to agriculture and in the other half-day they receive instruction in English, History and either mathematics, science or language. Thus they receive the fundamental and most modern principles of farming—fitting them to be better farmers—and at the same time receive instruction in the fundamental academic courses. They receive sufficient credits to enter most colleges and if they plan to go to college upon graduation from high school, with the aid of the principal they are able to elect the necessary courses for college entrance.

The agricultural department in the Quakertown High School was established a year ago with Ray Poorbaugh as supervisor of agriculture. Last year 24 pupils were enrolled in the agricultural course, however, this year the enrollment increased to 36. These pupils are from the school districts of Quakertown, Milford, Richland Township, Haycock, Bodminister, Trumbauersville, Richlandtown Borough and Coopersburg. Ninth and tenth grades receive instruction in Animal Husbandry, Farm Crops and Continued on Page Four

FELICITATE METHODISTS ON 150TH BIRTHDAY

Pastors of Bristol Churches and Former Pastors of M. E. Church Guests at Dinner

A DELIGHTFUL AFFAIR

Fellowship reigned supreme last night at the anniversary dinner of the Bristol Methodist Church, which this week is marking its 150th birthday. Former pastors, their wives; pastors of the Bristol churches and their wives, and members of the church partook of a delightful menu served by members of the choir. The Rev. Evans, pastor of the Methodist Church in Burlington, N. J., which is also observing its 150th anniversary, and the Rev. McCoy, pastor of the Broad Street M. E. Church, Trenton, N. J., were among the invited guests. The dinner was served in the dining hall to over 100 persons. The tables were attractively decorated with floral center-pieces.

A cordial welcome was extended those assembled by the Rev. J. Carpenter Zook, who then turned the program of the evening over to Dorog Green, president of the Board of Trustees, who acted as the toastmaster of the evening.

Greetings were brought to the Bristol church from the Methodist church in Burlington by the Rev. Evans, and felicitations were extended by the following Bristol clergymen on behalf of their respective churches: Rev. James R. Galley, Rev. John McElroy, Rev. George E. Boswell, Rev. Paul R. Ronge, Rev. Andrew J. Solta, and Rev. Norman Clark.

The guests from out of town were the Rev. Francis H. Tees and the Rev. James J. Bingham and Mrs. Bingham.

A friendly controversy over historical dates tended to enliven the evening. It was brought out that Old St. George's Church, Philadelphia, of which the Rev. Tees is pastor, is the oldest M. E. Church in the world. Dorog Green, Bristol's historian, made the claim that Bristol furnished the first female class leader in America, in the person of Mary Thorne, who went from here to Philadelphia and established herself as a class leader. The Rev. McCoy, Trenton, told how Joseph Toy first went to Burlington and then to Trenton. The Trenton church was organized in 1772 and the first meeting house in 1773. The Rev. Boswell stated that St. James' Protestant Episcopal Church, Bristol, was organized in 1712 and this year is 226 years old.

Interesting remarks were made by the Rev. Bingham, who was pastor for six years of the M. E. Church, here, thus being stationed here longer than any former pastor.

Mrs. Bingham, called upon for a few remarks, speaking from the woman's point of view, pleaded for some mention of Susanna Wesley, who, she stated, is scarcely mentioned in the history of Methodism.

The Brotherhood quartette, consisting of Howard Smoyer, Daniel Myers, William Thompson and James S. Douglas, favored with selections.

Tonight will be "Talent Night," when a program of entertainment will be given by home and outside talent, consisting of both vocal and instrumental selections, a magician, and various other numbers. Refreshments will be served.

School Board Yields To Public Sentiment For A Hall

The plans will be set up as three separate projects, however, so that if costs are higher than the school district anticipates, the building of the auditorium can be postponed.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

If Only They Worked

Washington, Oct. 18. THE most disturbing thing about the collapse of the Administration's farm program is what the Administration proposes to do about it. Some of the proposals now being presented appear to border on desperation. Obviously, it is felt that a new scheme is essential and apparently the first consideration is not whether it will work but whether it is new.

OF SUCH type are the two "plans" which have emanated recently from Mr. Wallace. One was outlined in his Kansas speech, when, after deploring the dangers of uncontrolled price fixing, he went on to say that a plan might be worked out whereby the Government would buy at a fixed price all the wheat produced on the acreage allotted by farmers co-operating with the farm program. Wheat produced by farmers not co-operating could then be taxed so as to remove it from competition.

THAT IS the essential idea. It would mean, of course, a complete monopoly by the Government of the wheat market, both domestic and foreign. It would mean complete submission of all wheat farmers to the bureaucrats in the Agricultural Department. It would mean the vanishing of the last trace of freedom for the farmers, who would become simply wards of the Federal authority, doing what they were told and grateful for what they got, but without power to map out their own lives or manage their own farms. In presenting this suggestion Mr. Wallace—to be fair to him—made it clear that he did not personally believe in it. Nevertheless, it was Continued on Page Four

PERFECT ORGANIZATION FOR HALLOWE'EN FROLIC

Contributions of Money and Merchandise Are To Be Solicited by Committee

NAME THE COMMITTEES

Arrangements for a big Hallowe'en parade got off to a good start last night, when representatives of various organizations met in the Legion Home, discussed the plans and considered the details for a celebration such as Bristol has not witnessed for a long time.

There were representatives from Bucks Lodge of Moose, Odd Fellows, Goodwill Fire Company, Camp Fire Girls, Women of the Moose, Knights of Columbus, Second Ward Boys' Club, Bristol Lodge of Elks, St. Ann's Athletic Association, Boys Scouts, Boy Scout Troop No. 2, Edgely Fire Co., American Legion, and Mill Street Business Men's Association.

A general appeal is made to business men and residents throughout the entire borough for contributions of either money or merchandise. It is the desire of those interested in the Hallowe'en parade to offer prize inducements which will attract the organizations, not only of Bristol, but from the various sections throughout lower Bucks county as well.

The solicitation committee will begin a canvass of the borough, and it is the plan of the committee to visit every merchant.

It was stated at the meeting that practically every merchant on Mill street has contributed to the affair.

After a discussion of the details and plans for the big frolic the following committees were named:

MODERN SCIENCE AND EXCEPTIONAL CHILD DISCUSSED

At Fifth Institute On Exceptional Child Held at Woods School, Langhorne

300 ATTEND SESSIONS

Special Emphasis is Placed On The Problem of Growth; Five Addresses

LANGHORNE, Oct. 19.—A study of "Modern Science and the Exceptional Child" was conducted yesterday at the fifth institute on the exceptional child, sponsored by the Child Research Clinic of The Woods School.

"Greenwood," the section of The Woods Schools located on Bellevue avenue, was the place of the morning and afternoon meetings, when 300 scientific leaders in the various fields concerned with the exceptional child gathered to listen to prominent speakers in this particular field of education.

Listed on the morning program were Dr. Eugenia S. Cameron, psychiatric director, Nursery and Child Study Home of Maryland, and instructor in psychiatry at the Henry Phipps Psychiatric Clinic of Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, Md.; and Lawson G. Lowrey, M. D., director of mental hygiene research of the Vocational Adjustment Bureau, and editor of the American Journal of Orthopsychiatry, New York.

During the afternoon session, following luncheon and visits to the classrooms and dormitories at "Harewood," "Wildwood," "Greenwood" and "Beechwood," those attending the institute, one of two held each year, had the privilege of hearing three more prominent in the field of education of the exceptional child. These included: Edgar A. Doll, Ph.D., director of research, The Training School, Vineland, N. J.; May Ayres Burgess, Ph.D., and Josephine Hemenway Kenyon, M. D., both of New York City.

Special emphasis was placed on the problem of growth throughout the institute.

Introducing the morning speakers, Dr. Frederick H. Allen, director of the Philadelphia Child Guidance Clinic, served as chairman at that meeting.

In approaching her subject "Factors in the Etiology of Psychoses in Early Adolescence," Dr. Cameron told that it is the behavior in the younger age group that brings the child to the psychiatric clinic, "with comparatively few developing psychiatric conditions in the middle teens." The difficulty of the transition from the family to the larger group of interests in the world, with the subsequent emotional detachment from the home plays a prominent part in the psychiatric conditions. It was brought out in this intensely interesting paper, "And it is the liabilities that are carried over into adult life conditions that make life difficult later," Dr. Cameron stated.

Specific cases were taken up for consideration, with early adolescent rebellion playing a large part in the problems, and in some instances over-protection on the part of the parents being the basis for the condition. Outstanding in the bases for some psychoses there were listed: hate, resistance to authority, and a feeling of being unwanted. In considering problems of sex information, the early questions put by the child, according to Dr. Cameron should be the time for their gaining of knowledge on a sound basis, sound information that will aid the child in meeting situations and perplexities in the years to come with a normal mental attitude. "Out of 55 specific cases which we have studied at the Phipps Clinic during the past three to 25 years, 11 have completely recovered from the first attacks; 22 had recurrence requiring some further psychiatric adjustments; and 22 were found to never be able to meet social adjustments."

Dr. Lawson G. Lowrey, the second speaker of the morning, dealt with "Problems of Aggression and Hostility in the Exceptional Child." The acute tensions which disturb a child Continued on Page Two

EQUAL RIGHTS AGAIN

To those persons whose conception of equal rights rests solely on the award to women of the right of franchise, announcement of a new campaign may come as a surprise. But the National Women's party has long contended that the right to vote was only one step in the direction of equality for men and women in all the relations of life.

Leaders of this party have been holding a convention in Detroit. There it was decided to enter upon a year's vigorous campaign to bring about the briefly stated objective of "Equal status for men and women." The objective is both social and economic. To finance the campaign, the women will set about raising a war chest of a million dollars. As a reminder that the campaign is on you may soon find that your letters bear "equal rights" stamps. And there is the promise that speakers will be sent into "every nook and corner" of the country to further the cause.

As we understand it, the National Women's party has but one plank in its platform, but that is all-inclusive. It calls for equal rights under the law between men and women, this assurance to be gained through amendment of the federal Constitution.

DON'T EXPOSE THEM

Modern science is combatting the dire tradition that there are diseases which sooner or later all children must have, and that therefore children may as well be exposed to these diseases that the ordeal may be the sooner over with.

Parents are warned not to think lightly of the dangers of measles and whooping-cough.

Whooping cough is one of the terrible menaces to the lives of children under one year old. The danger from it is greater than from both scarlet fever and diphtheria. These facts were emphasized in an address before the Wayne County Medical Society, Detroit, by Dr. James A. Conner, assistant medical superintendent of the Municipal Contagious Diseases Hospital, Chicago.

This is the scientific advice given to parents: Take every precaution to avoid exposing your children to these so-called diseases of childhood. And any child showing symptoms of any of these diseases should be kept from contact with other children and immediately given medical care.

The News, in Indianapolis, reports WPA projects so numerous in the Hoosier State they constitute a traffic problem. In this state they are so numerous all traffic will soon be suspended until after the election.

What is the strange restlessness that persists in Europe? It was thought all this was taken care of by the Munich bedtime story.

Modern Science And Exceptional Child Discussed

were taken up, and the speaker informed the audience that a neurosis is often a weapon of hostility on the part of a child. Life experiences of various cases were traced, and what part hostility played in each individual life was shown by Dr. Lowrey. The part that certain frustrations played in such hostilities was brought to light.

To Dr. Edgar A. Doll was assigned the subject of "Social Maturation." He stated:

"Democracy has played a leading role in 'discovering' the child. Our form of government extends to the masses the opportunities formerly available only to the favored classes. The very survival of democracies depends upon the success with which the potentialities of childhood are conserved for adulthood. The investment of this capital produces the dividends on which the nation must continue to live and prosper.

"The scientific study of groups has yielded a wealth of data regarding physique, health, personality, intelligence, skills, emotionality, and the correlated aspects of adjustment and occupation in the existing social order. These data have given us fairly accurate pictures of the average child. Let us remember the paradox that the average child is exceptional in some respects and that the exceptional child is average in most respects. This implies a double necessity for conserving what is normal as well as making the most of what is exceptional.

"Programs of child conservation and exploitation must be related to both general and special considerations. We have been slow to recognize the significant principle that all growth and development must be evaluated in terms of its significance for individual social competence. As the child grows physically he matures mentally. Both these aspects of development are reflected in progressive degrees of social competence. This social maturation which accompanies growth is of fundamental importance in the understanding and the care and training of the exceptional child.

"It seems evident that the child is personally dependent in his social activities during the first decade of life. In the second decade of life he moves rapidly toward self-assertion and independent action. In the third decade of life he becomes socially self-sufficient within the limits of group relationships and, through marriage or otherwise, ultimately assumes responsibilities for others.

"Sufficient work has been done to indicate both the practicability and the importance of such a general measure as a basic orientation in the study of exceptional children. Such over-all measurement of social competence is basic to a sound understanding and treatment of all individuals, whether normal or abnormal.

Dealing with the growth hormone treatment, Dr. Josephine Kenyon, M. D., presented as her subject "The Stimulation of Growth in Short Children." "The rate at which a child grows is an important indicator of one phase of his general physical condition," she stated. That rate is not without significance was brought out, "but children of the same racial origin born and reared in a country where the environment is favorable tend to be taller and heavier than their age mates and their brothers and sisters who were born and reared in the country of origin," it was stated.

Tending to influence growth is an adverse endocrine balance. Brought out as the outstanding finding of the whole study as presented by the speaker was that normally slow growing children respond to hypodermic growth stimulation by marked improvement in their general condition.

The address of Dr. Kenyon was illustrated by slides.

The third speaker of the second session, Dr. Burgess, presented "Height Charts in Growth Studies." In part she said:

"The height levels of groups of children depend primarily not, as we might expect upon race or heredity, but upon where the children live and how much money their parents are able to spend in taking care of them. If they live where there is sunshine and fresh air they are taller than if they live where skies are cloudy and the air full of coal dust. Of course there are plenty of exceptions. Endocrine disturbances and other illnesses occur at all economic levels, and there are dwarfs among the very rich and giants in the slums. But when we think in terms of normal children it remains true that the height levels along which children grow are generally determined by the climate in which they live and the economic status of their parents.

"Apparently all children grow, at least a little, whether they are receiving growth stimulation or not, until their epiphyses have fused. The problem in height stimulation cases, therefore, is to determine how much of each year's growth would presumably have occurred in any case and how much can fairly be regarded as due to medical treatment."

Miles Murphy, Ph.D., assistant director of the Psychological Laboratory and Clinic of the University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, presided during the afternoon.

The Child Research Clinic of The Woods School which was founded by the school five years ago, has as its purpose the furthering of a wider knowledge in scientific and lay circles of all phases of the problems of the exceptional child.

During the period between the serving of luncheon and the beginning of the afternoon meeting those attending were transported to the various schools in The Woods School system, to observe classes in session, and to visit the dormitories.

Morrisville May Erect High School Auditorium

The State Authority approved the tentative plans for the entire building program but the local board did not include the auditorium in its proposal until this week.

There is a strong sentiment in favor of including the auditorium in the building program since the cost to Morrisville will be only 33 percent of the total cost of the work.

As soon as working plans and specifications are completed, they will again be submitted to the State for approval. Bids will then be asked.

Announcement was made that the 2,400 feet of seven-foot fence around the new athletic field has been erected. It contains five entrances with the main one on West Hendrickson avenue where a 12-foot iron gate has been placed. Two brick and concrete posts for this gate were built with labor and material donated to the schools.

"Often a Bridesmaid"

BY HAZEL LIVINGSTON

SYNOPSIS

Of the three pretty Wickham girls, Margaret, the eldest, is the prettiest. It is she who supplies the boy friends for the younger girls, Natalie and Barbara, and for many of her friends. With most of the eligible young men of the community to choose from, Margaret picks Kenneth Raleigh, penniless but popular and handsome young football hero. Her best friend, Sue Becker, breaks down and confesses that she also loves Ken, and it is partly because of that and her family's half-concealed dissatisfaction with her choice that Margaret announces her engagement. Then something completely unforeseen happens. Though the Wickhams were comfortable, they were not wealthy. In an effort to make a fortune, Alex Wickham speculates and loses practically everything. Aunt Bet explains matters to the girls. Natalie cries that it wasn't fair of her father to take such a chance.

CHAPTER VII

"Oh, hush, Nat. Aunt Bet, we still have our income, don't we?" "What income, Margaret?"

"Why, the income—the salary daddy gets, from the firm!"

Aunt Bet took her time to answer. She twirled the rings on her thin fingers, touched the velvet ribbon at her throat. "The firm? The position—I'm afraid, my dears, that it hasn't been actually remunerative for several years. Your father... he's not a young man, you know, and he never quite adapted himself to American ways. I believe—I feel quite sure that the position with Holmes & Stokesley was really more a matter of prestige and a place from which he could operate."

"He's been very successful, all these years, you know. It wasn't his fault about the cotton. It was expected to make a fortune for him—for all of us. That's why he put so very much into it. But we all make mistakes—and we can manage... we can manage..."

The tears rolled down her furrowed cheeks, her hands, with the old diamond and sapphire rings, shook pitiously.

Babs put her warm, firm hand over her aunt's cold, trembling one. She was going to say something, but Natalie spoke, instead. She said: "That means I can't go back to college." She looked accusingly at Margaret, who had finished, who had all the thrill of a perfect senior week, a lovely new dress, everything.

Margaret didn't even hear. She was thinking of Ken. She'd have to go to work or something. She couldn't, as they'd planned, be married in the fall.

Margaret told Ken—she had to tell Ken, she knew her father would win with pain if he knew that what he euphemistically referred to as his "affairs" were being discussed with a stranger.

Ken could hardly believe it. It was as if the Bank of England had failed. He'd never liked Alex Wickham, but his dislike had been mixed with a deep, if reluctant admiration. He'd known that Wickham wasn't rich, but he could no more dissociate him from security, and a certain amount of mellow luxury, than he could think of the Wickham house without its silver candelabra, its thick oriental rugs, its wide lawns and the old magnolia trees.

So he'd lost everything, the condescending old codger who wore dinner jackets even when there wasn't company, and talked about India as if it were right across the border and you were supposed to have been there, too! Well, serves him right, Ken thought, for thinking he was better than anybody else! And he thought of his own father who was still doing well in the grocery business, even if the chain stores were stealing some of the trade away, and it came to him that it was lucky Margaret had have gone up since then." "Fifty!" Ken was upset. It didn't seem possible. "Well, he concluded brightly, 'we might have to run behind a little at first, but by fall we'd be sitting pretty. Once I get set in my own line of work—' "They talked about it. They even went out and looked at apartments. Ken was crushed by prices. He wouldn't consider a really cheap place. 'I want you to have something nice,' he told Margaret, doggedly.

Dear Kenny... Margaret's heart

"Why do we have to have money for places to live and things to eat and clothes to wear?" Ken asked.

someone to turn to, someone who could really take care of her.

"Well, that settles it," he said, aloud. "We'll get married right away."

"Oh!" Margaret said. She looked at him, her heart in her eyes. "But Kenny—I can't—we can't—"

"Why not?"

"Well, how could we live?"

"Same as other people, I guess."

"Oh, Kenny—the money!"

He was so dear, so protective, he wanted to do so much for her, and his arms were so sheltering and strong, why did she have to speak about money? But she did—it had to be faced!

He said, "Of course, 18 a week isn't anything, but it's the most the Campus Haberdashery has ever paid anyone and we can manage. I figure it won't be later than fall before I'll be sitting pretty in the stock and bond business, and with my contacts I'll have 'em licked!"

"Of course!" She pressed his hand. But she was doing some mental arithmetic. Eighteen a week, less than $80 a month... "We could get a little apartment, a real small one out near the campus. You know, like Carol and Dick had last year."

"They paid $50 for it. And rents

BRISTOL

Those who like excitement tempered with pathos should see Monogram's "Wanted by the Police," now at the Bristol Theatre. From the moment the film starts, every scene is crowded with action and heart throbs.

"Wanted by the Police" shows the problems of an innocent high school graduate caught in the mesh of big time racketeers. Frankie Darro is thrilled with his first job as mechanic in the garage. His sister, Evalyn Knapp, is free to marry her police man-sweetheart, Robert Kent. The Playing the first starring role of his brief but highly successful motion picture career, Johnnie "Scat" Davis and his trumpet share the honors with Lola Lane and Penny Singleton in "Mr. Champ," the Warner Bros. comedy-drama of happenings in a fictitious mid-western town, which comes to the Grand Theatre today.

It's not strictly a musical picture, but Johnnie's role is that of a corn-fed though not "corny" trumpet player, so there's plenty of musical entertainment in it.

In the course of the picture, Johnnie introduces—both vocally and instrumentally—two new songs written especially for him to sing and play in this production. They are "As Long

LANGHORNE SQUAWS OPEN SEASON TODAY

LANGHORNE, Oct. 19.—Although the current season is practically half over insofar as field hockey is concerned, the Langhorne "Squaws" are just getting under way in their campaign for the '38 championship, opening the campaign here tomorrow.

Not that the schedule makers slipped up in arranging their first game for so late in the season, but a delayed reply for the P. I. A. A. officials at Harrisburg in regard to athletic insurance has caused the girls of Coach Ann Corn to fight around waiting for action.

Langhorne, according to schedule should have had two games in already, with Southampton and New Hope. As a matter of fact they were to meet Southampton on the opening day of the season, October 5, but the late arrival of the "insurance" slips forced postponement of each of their first two encounters both of which were carded at Langhorne.

But in spite of the fact their first two home games were postponed, the Squaws will still open the campaign playing on the home field. Their schedule called for three straight home games before playing the last four away. Therefore, with two games being delayed, they still have the third to open on the home field.

The opposition for the tilt will be furnished by the Newtown Bluebellies. Other games for the day pit Richboro against Bensalem on the Owls' field, and Buckingham at Southampton.

PORTLAND, Ore.—(INS)—

Henry Bretano of St. Paul, Ore., wondered today whether he had uncovered a valuable relic of pioneer days in the form of a book showing purchases of rum, calico and other goods in New York between the years 1799 and 1802. The ledger recorded many sales to New Yorkers, most of whom appeared to be of Dutch origin.

ZAHARIAS TO OPPOSE STRONGBOW TONIGHT

TRENTON, Oct. 19.—George Zaharias, noted Greek grappler, who recently married Babe Didrikson, famous woman athlete, will oppose Jules Strongbow, 242-pound towering Cherokee Indian, in the feature wrestling bout on Promoter Johnny Ipp's weekly mat party at the Arena tonight.

This match will bring together two of the foremost exponents of modern slam-bang wrestling in the sport and plenty of action and thrills are indicated when they clash. It will be a best two-fall-out-of-three, 90-minute time-limit tussle, and a large crowd is expected to see the fireworks.

The semi-windup between Dr. Len Hall and Hank Matheny is attracting almost as much attention as the wind-up. Both Hall and Matheny are undefeated on the local canvas and both will strive mightily to maintain their winning ways.

Lee Yat Wing, the only Chinese wrestler in the game, will make his debut against Jack McArthur, former St. Mary's College grid star.

Kerol Krauser, Polish Adonis, and one of the classiest newcomers in the game, will make his debut against Joe Pazandak, former University of Minnesota A. A. U. heavyweight wrestling champion.

In the opening encounter, Sammy Menacher, popular Bronx Hebrew, will oppose Chief Sanookie, massive Indian grappler.

The first bout will start at 8.30 p. m.

JENKINTOWN HIGH TO PLAY NIGHT GAME

JENKINTOWN, Oct. 19.—Fans who follow closely the activities of Coach Bill Dougherty and his Jenkintown Red Devils, will have a chance to watch his club in action in a night tilt this week.

The Drakes, who have one of the best teams to take the field at Jenkintown in years, and are already rated among the best clubs in the Bux-Mont conference this season, are taking to the nocturnal affair purely as experimental. A traveling company from Long Island, New York, will supply the highly efficient lighting equipment, which is supposed to not only illuminate the playing field, but will also eliminate the shadow problem in night playing. They will, besides that, have a P. A. system hooked up to keep the fans who attend the game up on each play and the situation as it occurs from time to time.

Should the experiment prove successful from all sides—the players, the game itself, the spectators, and the gate—then it is more than likely that Jenkintown and many other schools will take up the practice of night football in the future. As a matter of fact, if the officials at the school approve of the idea, following the game, they may get to play more night games this season or at least they will take it up on a larger scale next year.

It might also profit the officials of Bristol High to watch closely for they, too, could stand to play night football if it is a much better paying proposition than afternoon football. And that goes for other Lower Bucks County schools, as well.

The opposition offered the Drakes in this contest is being furnished by the Sellersville-Perkasie High School, considered one of the better clubs in the Bux-Mont conference this season. Through Coach Bill Dougherty, Jenkintown has a large following among the local fans as witnessed in their last home game against Lansdale when several hundred of them turned out to see the game.

SOUTHAMPTON WINS OVER RICHBORO TEAM

SOUTHAMPTON, Oct. 19.—Coach Claude Lodge's Southampton Greyhounds stayed in the fight to topple Buckingham High from the pinnacle of the Lower Bucks County soccer league when they knocked off Richboro High here yesterday afternoon, 2-1.

Although outplayed through most of the game, Richboro played inspired ball throughout the contest, and lost out only after they had knotted the count in the second period at 1-1. They also missed an opportunity to tie the score again in the third period when, in the midst of a scrimmage about 5 yards in front of Southampton's goal, Walt Yerkes, Greyhound goalie, picked the ball up and heaved it out of danger.

Periods: Richboro..... 0 1 0 0-1
Southampton..... 1 1 0 0-2

Goals: Southampton—Heaton, Smith, Richboro—Clayton. Referee: Luff, Buckingham. Time of periods: 12 minutes.

Agricultural Students Increase in Numbers

Farm Mechanics. Eleventh and twelfth grades receive instruction in Farm Management, Marketing and Farm Mechanics.

In the Pleasant Valley High School the agricultural department was established this year with Raymond Lloyd as supervisor of agriculture. Mr. Lloyd is a graduate of Rutgers College in Agricultural Education and Poultry and has taken advanced work at Cornell University. He has had experience in teaching agriculture as well as practical experience in farming. He was born and raised on a farm in Cape May County, N. J. In this school 31 are enrolled in agriculture and they are from the school districts of Springfield, Tinicum and Haycock.

The course in agriculture consists of what is known as a cross section plan whereby instruction is given each year in Farm Mechanics, Poultry, Farm Management, Dairy, Vegetable growing, Animal Husbandry, Fruit growing and Farm Crops. This is studied throughout the year. The work covered the previous year is reviewed and each year advanced information is studied on the subject.

The agricultural course is not a theoretical course but it is made as practical as possible. Frequent trips are made to farms to study successful agricultural methods in actual practice. The boys are all expected to carry on a farm enterprise as their own, such as raising poultry, swine, dairy cattle, vegetables, or farm crops. The idea is to put into practice what was learned in the classroom and to gain the actual experience.

Plans are underway whereby more agricultural departments will be established in other high schools of the county and whereby this practical course of instruction will be available to those pupils who expect to follow farming as a life work.

The instruction is under the supervision of the local high school principal, County Superintendent of Schools, J. Harry Hoffman and Samuel L. Horst, County Supervisor of Agriculture, 112 Court House, Norrisville. The services of Mr. Horst can be obtained through Mr. Hoffman or by direct communication and he will attempt to confer with school boards, agricultural organizations or service clubs. Mr. Horst has an extensive set of slides showing on the screen the work of the agricultural departments in both Bucks and Montgomery Counties.

Administration is enveloped. It is also a tribute to the gullibility of the great American people.

The Great Game of Politics

plain that if there should arise a demand from the farm "leaders" he would acquiesce.

THE OTHER plan—the one Mr. Wallace talked over with the President and which was favorably commented upon by various Senators and others, who, without examination as to soundness, always endorse every suggestion, of the sort, proposes to turn over to our "depressed third" the surplus farm products of the nation at prices lower than the market. The idea is that the Government, through market control, will fix two prices for farm products—one a price for those who are solvent and have the money to pay, and another very much lower price for the insolvent or those in straitened financial condition. In other words, farm products, which include cotton goods as well as food, are to be supplied to the poor at one price and to the relatively rich at another.

IT HAS a fine humanitarian sound, and the cheaper professional friends of the down-trodden and oppressed rushed to say what a noble idea had been presented. And so it is, if it could be made to work. So would have been the other farm gadgets and schemes and experiments made by this Administration if they had been workable. That is the only trouble with these things—they won't work. Otherwise, they are all right. They sound well in the mouths of their sponsors; they look well on paper; they seem on the surface to be without flaw. Vast enthusiasm can be engendered about them prior to their application. It is only when the attempt to operate is made that it is found they have everything except the essential. All they lack is an elemental common-sense foundation.

SUPERFICIALLY, this plan to sell to the poor lower than to the well-to-do might be considered a solution of the farm problem as well as an aid to the relief problem, but that notion does not bear scrutiny. On the contrary, any analysis shows its complete absurdity. In the first place, to apply Mr. Wallace's theory to the three great crops of wheat, cotton and tobacco would put the Government into the milling business, the garment business and the cigarette and cigar business. There would be no alternative if the surpluses of these crops are to be disposed of in the way suggested. In the second place, it would involve an administrative organization so vast as to make the present Federal machine seem puny.

IN THE third place, either the Government would have to take over completely the regulation of every phase of agriculture from the planting to the consumer, or the farmers able to sell their surpluses to the Government would be stimulated to produce increased surpluses endlessly. And finally, of course, no thought has been given as to how the poor who are to get farm products at the low price are to be distinguished from the relatively well-to-do who must pay the higher price. Who is to determine when a man is poor and when well-to-do? By what rule are the classes to be divided? How much income would necessitate paying the higher price? How little income must a man have to avail himself of the lower price? Who would verify the facts as to the financial status of individuals, and how?

IT ONLY needs a few questions such as these to establish the fact that the effort to put such a scheme into execution would result in chaos. It doesn't take much reflection to grasp the hollowness of this noble idea. That it could be seriously put out by a responsible official is an indication of the appalling confusion in which the WHEREAS, there is reason to believe that the disease of rabies or hydrophobia exists or is likely to occur in the Borough of Bristol by reason of the fact that a number of dogs within the Borough of Bristol have recently been bitten by a dog suffering from said disease, and the nature of the disease is such that all dogs within the limits of said Borough must be suspected of being capable of spreading the same, and the welfare and the safety of the citizens require that all dogs within said Borough having been bitten by such dog shall immediately be killed, and all other dogs for the present be quarantined.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, CLIFFORD L. ANDERSON, Burgess of the Borough of Bristol, by virtue of the authority in me vested as such Burgess under the law, in pursuance of the provisions under an Ordinance of the Borough of Bristol entitled "An Ordinance Granting Authority to the Burgess to Enforce His Proclamation Enforcing the Ordinance Controlling the Running at Large of Dogs Within the Borough Limits" enacted the Ninth day of January, A. D. 1882, do hereby proclaim and order that all dogs actually bitten by or which have been fighting with a mad dog, or exposed to the said disease of rabies, shall immediately be killed by the owners thereof, and in case the owner of any such dog shall neglect or refuse to put such dog to death immediately, legal proceedings against such owner for neglect or refusal will at once be instituted and such dog ordered to be killed as provided by the Act of Assembly of April 1, 1834, P. L. 161.

That every dog that has been in contact with or close proximity to a mad dog, or exposed to the disease of rabies, although not actually bitten, shall be strictly quarantined on the premises of the owner and shall be muzzled with a well-fitting muzzle which shall effectually prevent biting, and shall be tied up, chained and safely secured by a heavy collar around the neck, attached to a substantial chain, which shall be safely fastened to a secure place, and shall be so tied up, muzzled and secured for a period of one hundred days from the date hereof.

All dogs within the Borough of Bristol are hereby ordered to be placed in a state of quarantine and must be strictly confined or firmly secured on the premises of their owners, and not allowed to run at large or enter upon the streets, lanes or highways of the said Borough; PROVIDED, HOWEVER, that dogs which have not been exposed to said disease may be permitted upon the said streets or highways when led by a leash and muzzled with a well-fitting muzzle which will effectually prevent biting.

This quarantine shall remain in force for one hundred days from the date hereof unless sooner removed by me or other competent authority.

The word dog as used in this proclamation shall be held to include and comprehend not only dogs but bitches as well.

Owners of dogs are notified and warned that a disregard of this proclamation or the permitting of dogs to run at large within the said Borough without being led by a leash and muzzled may lead to the destruction of their dogs, and that they themselves may be proceeded against in accordance with law and the above-cited Ordinance.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and affixed the corporate seal of the Borough of Bristol this Fifteenth day of October, A. D. 1938.

I Am Proud of the Enemies I Have Made

A Statement by M. L. Annenberg

Since coming into the ownership of The Philadelphia Inquirer two years ago, I have had only one aim, to perform my duty and fulfill my trusteeship to the public.

From that objective I do not propose to be swerved by anything, least of all by lying, malicious and utterly baseless attacks made upon me by political profiteers and character assassins.
